P.S. Over the next few days we’re going to send you additional, important facts and information about finding a great handyman. Here’s the first one:

Handyman Facts

While the term “handyman” used to mean a contractor, usually a man, that would come to your home and be able to fix anything that needed done, the term has greatly evolved today. Now handymen typically choose a field in which they will specialize such as plumbing, electrical, landscaping, and other areas. While this may mean that you’ll need to find multiple handymen – one to take care of each aspect of your home – it also means that once you find them, you’ll have a specialist working on any and every aspect of your home that needs work.

Also, while the term “handymen” is still generally used to describe contractors that will perform work and complete tasks on your home, there are many women today that also take on the job of handy-“man.” And, many of these women are at the top of their field!

#2: Why should you hire a Handyman?

Yesterday you downloaded our free report, "Everything You Must Know Before Hiring a Handyman."

We hope you have invested the 10 minutes or so it takes to go through it. We have found that it answers the most common questions and really gives you the knowledge you need to find the right handyman for your requirements.

If you still have questions please feel free to contact us anytime at:

Before we go we want to give you another important Handyman Fact:

You might think that you can take on certain jobs and tasks around your home on your own. After all, even though you'll still have to purchase the tools and materials, you won't have to pay for labor costs and so that will make the job cheaper in the long run, right?

Well, maybe, but that's not always the case.

In fact, if you take on a job yourself at home, there's a chance that you won't complete it as well as it needs to be done and if you don't, not only is there a big chance that you can seriously damage your home, but you might have to call in a handyman anyway to fix your work. While you might think that you can complete any job on your home, the chances are good that you might not be able to. Your best bet is to always contact a handyman first to see if there's anything they can give to the project that you just won't be able to.

#3 What can happen if I pick the wrong Handyman?

Hello,

You're receiving this email because a couple days ago you downloaded our free report, "Everything You Must Know Before Hiring a Handyman".

Today we want to give you our third installment of "Handyman Facts":

Choosing the wrong handyman can bring on a whole host of consequences. The handyman could show up late to the job, bring other employees that you didn't know would be in and/or around your home and you may end up dealing with these employees that you don't even know instead of the handyman that you originally interviewed and spoke with. The entire scope of the job could also take much longer than you were originally told it would, and as anyone who's ever had work done on their home will tell you, that can wreak havoc on your life and could turn into a total inconvenience.

Worst of all, hiring the wrong handyman could have disastrous effects on your home. If the job is not done correctly, not only will the original problem not get fixed, but the handyman could end up causing more damage than what was there in the first place.

#4 How can I determine if a handyman is high quality?

Hello,

You're receiving this email because a few days ago you downloaded our free report, "Everything You Must Know Before Hiring a Handyman".

Today we want to give you our fourth of five installments of "Handyman Facts":

There are several ways you can ensure that you get the best handyman for the job and for your home. The first is to make sure you do as much research as you can before hiring a handyman. Search online, look in your local Yellow Pages, and ask friends and family members for recommendations. But don't think your research ends there either!

Once you have a list of potential handyman candidates that might be suitable to work on your home, sit down with each of them for an interview. Talk in detail about the work you need done, ask lots of questions, and make sure that you like them and feel comfortable with them. Also make sure that during this interview, you walk through your home with the handyman to make sure they understand the work that needs to be done and that they feel comfortable doing it. Only speaking with the handyman at length before the job begins will ensure that you hire a handyman that is of good quality and will perform the job as you need it to be done.

#5: Thanks for Contacting Us!

Hello,

You're receiving this email because a few days ago you downloaded our free report, "Everything You Must Know Before Hiring a Handyman".

Today we want to give you the fifth and final installment of "Handyman Facts":

Lastly, in addition to just finding out about different handymen and their expertise, you'll also need to find out a little bit more about the pricing of different handymen. Handymen usually charge by the ½ hour or the hour, so you'll need to speak to any handyman you're considering hiring and determine which pricing structure is best for you. In addition to their rates, you'll also want to make sure that any handyman you hire offers a warranty or guarantee on their work. This will ensure that should something go wrong with the work the first time, you'll be able to have it fixed at no additional charge to you.
